The expected return of the main body of Nevember meteors dwarfs every other astronomical event this fall. The ablendor of their display in 1833 made so deep an impression that they have ever since occupied a place apart in the popular imagination as the most gorgeous and startling of all celestial pageants. The fact that three of their periods measure lust the span of a century tends to add to their reputation as a speciacle. Although their returns are separated by a space of thirty-three years and a fraction yet they may be seen three times in the course of a man's life. One who saw them as a child in 1833, might have regarded their fiery menace with the cooler judgment of a middle aged man in 1866, and, this year, may behold again the scene that marked the start and the turning post of his life with ineffaceable memories of wonders in the heavens.

But, while everybody hopes for a br. dant spectacle on this occasion. there are reasons for anticipating a possible disappointment. In 1866 the display, although imposing, was by no means as wonderful as it had been in 1833. The fact that the meteors were almost as abundant in 1867 as in 1866 showed that they were being scattered along their path. Later investigations indicate that this scattering of the moteors has probably continued ever since. The planet Jupiter, the great preturber of the solar system, has had his hand upon them. They are apparently traveling in several shoals, or parallel streams, and it may be that when the earth crosses their line of march it will fail to pass through any very dense column of the

Yet, at the worst, it is certain that there will be a meteorle "shower." Ther may be only a hundred, or a few hundred visible in an hour, or there may be many thousands. One unfortunate circumstanse will be the presence of a strong moonlight, which will suffice to conceal many small meteors and to rob the large ones of much of their brilliance. The maximum of the display is generally expected soon after midnight on the morning of November 16, and at that time the moon will be within twenty-eight hours of tie full phase. At 1 o'clock a. m., November 16, the moon will be in the constellation Aries, about two hours west of the meridian, while the raidant points of the meteors, in Leo, will be about two hours from its rising point in the northeast. While the best obtainable information points to the first hour of the morning of November 16 as the time when the meteors will be most numerous, yet the data are so uncertain that all observers are advised to be on the watch forty-eight hours earlier. Begin say at midnight on the 14th and watch until dawn. Resume watching on the following night, and so on until the morning of the 17th. Every watcher for the November meteors on this occasion can have the satisfaction of knowing that his, or her, vigil is be-Admiral Dewey is announced to ing scared all over the civilized world lution of the mystery of the November meteors will stand, in the perspective

By means of an electric motor air is orced through the cylinder and force pump into a storage chamber, and thence through a series of pipes surrounded with ice.

To start the machine in action to its fullest power, it must be loaded Council No. 1, United Commercial with 90 pounds of ice, After that it onight Sauerkraut Famine.

A sauerkraut famine is threatened one just signed by President McKinn this city. What such a famine means is not understood by those who are not aware that sauerkrant is the greatest popular dish of St. Louis, and occupies the place taken by beans in Boston. It is estimated that more sauerkraut is consumed here than in Chicago, which has twice the population of this city. Missouri soll is said to be especially adapted to cabbage growing, and as there are many Germans in the city the consumption of auerkraut follows naturally. The among their American friends until a St. Louis house without sauerkraut is like home without a mother.

There were heavy frosts at the beginning of the season, which killed many plants and consequently the cabbage crop was light. When the coverkrant makers came into market this fall for their raw material they discovered this state of things. Prices went up at a jump. Cabbages sold by the ton a year ago at from $5 to be. Now they bring $15 to $18 a ton by the carload and are hard to get Marketmen say that this means a onanza for Southern truck gardners, particularly those of Florida, who will begin planting cabbages next month "A big Republican majority in Ohio By the time it is ready for market it is expected that the price will be enormous.-St. Louis Cor. New York Sun.
